

Continue Your Partnership: Missionary Partnership Plan

Throughout Erin's journey to bring God's Word to communities in Mexico, she has found a strong partner in Alamance Presbyterian Church. From the beginning, her home church encouraged her to pursue God's call on her life to spread the gospel through cross-cultural work.

"My home church watched me grow up from the time I was three," Erin said. "They saw the whole process of me figuring out that missions is where I need to be. They really felt led to come alongside me and continue to be with me through the rest of the journey."

When Erin joined Wycliffe, Alamance Presbyterian decided to partner in a unique way through the Missionary Partnership Plan. This option offered by the Wycliffe Foundation makes it easy for Erin's church family to invest in her life and ministry, helping keep Erin on the field and focused on her translation work.

"It's made it really easy for my home church to give in a meaningful way. They don't have to think about it beyond once — they send a check and then they know it's taken care of. It's nice for me because I have that peace of mind.

"The community [at my church] has stood with me in prayer, encouraged me and stood by me financially. It's not just me doing the work — it's the whole body."

How It Works

Wycliffe Foundation can help you create a plan that allows you to continue your financial partnership with missionaries serving with a Wycliffe organization. One way to do this is through a Missionary Partnership Plan (MPP).

Through this agreement, you can provide monthly funding to your designated missionary with a gift of $10,000 or more in cash, securities or other assets. Your contributions are eligible for current-year tax deductions.

The assets go into an interest-bearing account, and your financial partnership continues as long as the missionary has a financial relationship with Wycliffe or until funds are exhausted.

You can set up an MPP to begin immediately or, if funded through a bequest, to begin and continue after your lifetime. If the missionary leaves Wycliffe before funds are exhausted, the rest will be used where needed most.

One of our skilled gift-planning advisers will be happy to help you set up an MPP for your designated missionary.
